Institute for Integrative Nutrition

Being a student host for the Visiting Executive Program at Tuck was a chance to give back to a community that has given so much to me. The opportunity to build relationships with high-powered leaders, facilitate valuable interactions with the Tuck community, and serve as an ambassador of the Tuck brand was a tremendous honor. The chance to learn from the caliber of executives who participate in the VE program is an unparalleled opportunity for students at the Tuck School, and being a VE host offers a front row seat.

Since my time at Tuck, I have created a career in holistic nutrition and am proud of the opportunity to influence one of the biggest social and economic challenges our country is facing: the escalating health crisis. I graduated from The Institute for Integrative Nutrition, affiliated with Teachers College Columbia University, and am a board certified Holistic Health Counselor. Through this training, I learned how to work with clients—both individuals and corporations—to achieve their health goals. Prior to becoming a Health Counselor, I was a consultant in the New York office of Bain & Company. A few months after launching my own business, I was recruited by Integrative Nutrition to focus on strategy, operations, and marketing.

Thanks to my Tuck education I have my dream job and am able to combine my passion and my skills in an organization out to change the world.
