

The Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth
Faculty Search in Strategy and Management
August, 2011

The Strategy and Management Group at the Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth College seeks to fill a tenure-track position in Strategy. The appointment, beginning in July, 2012, is at the rank of Assistant, Associate or Full Professor.

We have a preference for candidates who already have a track record of producing research of excellent quality and who are looking to join a high-quality group that can offer the intellectual, financial, and time resources that are essential to maintaining a leadership position in the field of strategy. Ideally, the candidate should also be able to bridge levels of analysis in both teaching and research, and to collaborate with other members of the group. Candidates should be able to teach MBA students effectively in courses that fit their own portfolio as well as Tuck's teaching needs.

The Tuck School of Business, founded in 1900, is consistently ranked among the top ten U.S. business schools. The Strategy and Management group includes Ron Adner, Pino Audia, Ella Bell, Richard D'Aveni, Sydney Finkelstein, Vijay Govindarajan, Len Greenhalgh, Constance Helfat, William Joyce, Andrew King, Adam Kleinbaum, Margaret Peteraf, Alva Taylor, and Judith White.

The Tuck School fosters an environment that is intellectually stimulating and interdisciplinary. We welcome diversity. We look for excellence in both research and teaching and provide ample financial and logistical support in a highly collegial culture as a means to achieve these ends. The School provides faculty with state-of-the-art computer technology enhanced with in-house programming support. Library and academic coordinator support is generous, as is the funding is provided for research assistance and for travel related to either research or teaching.

Chartered in 1761, the town of Hanover is a charming rural New England town that boasts sophisticated educational and cultural resources. The college is the town's largest employer. Residents enjoy a first-rate public school system and an award-winning teaching hospital, among other amenities. Recreational opportunities are abundant all year round, from paddling on the Connecticut River, to golf or skiing at college facilities that are open to the public, to hiking the Appalachian Trail, which runs through town.

Hanover is located in the scenic Upper Valley of the Connecticut River, two hours from Boston, three hours from Montreal, and a short flight from New York City.
