Housing for your way of life.
About half of Tuck’s single first-year students live on campus, and the college offers housing alternatives for graduate students with partners and families. (There’s more about campus housing on the Class of 2015 Admitted Students website.) The Dartmouth College Real Estate Office maintains the Upper Valley Rental List and other resources to help you find privately owned housing off campus. http://dartmouthre.com/
Some things you can’t find anywhere else.

Over the past century, we’ve learned that the best leaders are also the best collaborators and the best thinkers.

Our commitment to building collaboration and leadership skills leads us to focus on our community. Responsibility, respect, ethics, and stewardship all flow from interactions with each other, and we live what we teach. On our vibrant campus, you’ll learn as much outside the classroom as in.

You and your accomplished classmates will work together in teams, and a lot of your success will be based on an openness to know each other well and build effective relationships.

Tuck also knows that your success will depend on insight, not just skills. Our distinctive research seminars will teach you to test ideas against both theory and data, helping you achieve a fuller understanding of management issues—and a clearer vision of your future.

We believe that you won’t find these programs and points of view anywhere else.
Get ready for your new life.

It’s a person-to-person place.
Being a part of our learning community involves extensive engagement with classmates, faculty, and staff. You’ll have plenty of opportunity to do this—from clubs and student organizations to frequent social events on and off campus.

Hanover, a great place to focus on learning.
For more than two centuries, Hanover has been a place of learning, the right place to fully appreciate your Tuck experience. And because business executives love to visit us here, you’ll have easy access to their insight.
www.tuck.dartmouth.edu/2015

Your individual financial needs.
Careful financial planning will ensure your success, and today’s changing economy makes planning for financial aid even more important. We encourage you to talk with a member of the financial aid office when you are admitted and throughout your time at Tuck.

Team up now!
Learn what collaboration means at Tuck by participating in an Outward Bound program customized for Tuck students. You can get involved with TuckBuilds, which supports low-income housing in our area, or go on an outdoor trip to hike, camp, and bond with new classmates. All programs are voluntary and take place before Orientation.

Help for partners.
Tuck partners (spouses and significant others) can get all sorts of help and support from the Tuck Partners Club. In particular, notices of jobs in Hanover are sent to the Tuck Partners Club email list. Check out the full range of partner resources soon. tuck.partners.club@dartmouth.edu · www.tuck.dartmouth.edu/2015

Make math easier.
Are your math skills up to MBA standards? Check yourself at www.mbamath.com. If you need some help, dust off your old textbooks or consider enrolling in a supplemental quantitative course before you arrive. www.tuck.dartmouth.edu/2015

Your career is a top priority.
Before you arrive at Tuck, career counselors will be available to review your résumé and discuss your plans. And during your first days on campus, you’ll meet one-on-one with your assigned counselor before recruiting kicks off, with alumni panels about the major industries and employment sectors. www.tuck.dartmouth.edu/careers

Registration and Orientation in August.
Show up, ready to work, before Registration in late August. The week that follows—Orientation—will be the foundation of your career at Tuck. Participation in both events is mandatory. (Students participating in pre-enrollment programs will arrive earlier, as specified by the program information.)
Wanted not just “admitted.”

Admitting you to Tuck isn’t just a process. It’s a very important moment for us as well as for you. We’ve already invested a lot in you: a long time considering you, talking about you, and—most of all—coming to understand you as a person.

We want you to join us for two years and for the lifetime that follows. In a direct and literal way, your brilliant future is also our future.

We expect that you’ll be great at whatever you choose to do, and we’d like to be there while you do it.

You and Tuck: the next great thing.
